

The Film Advertisement: A Source for Language Activities*

Anthony Mollica

Since films continue to be a major vehicle for recreation and social ideology, film advertisements should constitute an effective tool for language learning. And yet, in spite of its immediate availability, the film advertisement is not being widely used as an aid for language activities. Although it appears sporadically in some basic language programs, its potential use in the classroom has neither been discussed nor fully exploited.¹ In a recently published article, Frederick J. Bosco suggests the movie ad as a source that can be used in designing tests which measure reading and other skills.² Restricted possibly by space, Bosco does not elaborate on the "other skills." The movie advertisement may be used for testing comprehension, as a means to expand students' basic vocabulary, as a basis for translation exercises and, on occasion, as a means of supplying insight into the "culture" of the target language. In addition, a host of activities can be created to reinforce the above as well as provide ample opportunities for language interaction.

Easily found in daily newspapers, the advertisement may be cut out and pasted on coloured construction paper so that it will stand out much better or be quickly transferred onto a transparency for use with an overhead projector. Whichever method the teacher opts for, the aim is to ensure that students will be able to see the visual material as clearly as possible. The teacher can then proceed with a varied series of activities depending on the linguistic ability of the students.

Comprehension

The movie advertisement is well suited to test students' comprehension of the visual materials. Following are some questions which may accompany the advertisements:

1. Quel est le titre de ce film? (Figures, 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9).
2. À quel cinéma présente-t-on ce film? (Figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9).
3. Depuis combien de temps est-ce qu'on le projette? (Figures 5, 8).
4. Quelles sont les vedettes? (Figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8).
5. À quelle heure commence la projection de ce film? (Figures 2, 4, 8).
6. À qui s'adresse ce film? (Figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9).
7. Quel moyen de transport doit-on prendre pour s'y rendre? (Figure 5).
8. Qu'est-ce qui joue, aujourd'hui, au cinéma Villeray? (Figure 1).
9. Choisissez quatre expressions qui nous laissent croire que le film est une comédie. (Figure 1).

* I should like to express my gratitude to La Presse, Corriere della Sera, Il Giornale and Universal Films for permission to reproduce the advertisements which appear in this article. I am also indebted to M. François Roy of La Presse and Dott.ssa Maria Macchi of Corriere della Sera for obtaining, on my behalf, permission to reproduce the advertisements which appeared in their dailies and to the various film companies for granting permission.

10. Qu'est-ce que la critique nous dit de ce film? (Figures 1, 4).
11. Où ces critiques ont-elles paru? (Figures 1, 4).
12. Quelle opinion les spectateurs expriment-ils à propos de ce film? (Figure 2).
13. Combien de prix de l'Académie ce film a-t-il gagnés? (Figure 5).

5. Secondo te, perché si consiglia di vedere il film dall'inizio?

The advertisement may also be used as a starting point for familiarizing students with literary works which provided a source for movies (Figure 11).

1. Da quale romanzo è tratto questo film?

The answer is obvious, but it does elicit the reply: "È tratto dal film omonimo" thus providing the student possibly with a new vocabulary word (omonimo). The teacher may wish to ask students whether they are familiar with other novels or plays for which a movie has been made:

2. Quali altri romanzi hanno ispirato registi?

or to identify other works by the novelist in question:

3. Quali altre opere ha scritto il Buzzati?

The teacher may wish to identify the international cast and in so doing review adjectives of nationality:

4. Di che nazionalità è Vittorio Gassman?
5. Di che nazionalità è Francisco Rabal?

Vocabulary

In spite of the fact that adjectives in the superlative degree are indispensable in this type of advertisement to attract the viewing public:

- | | |
|------------|--|
| Figure 4: | le film le plus émotif et le plus valable |
| Figure 4: | le film policier le plus vivant |
| Figure 5: | les heures les plus troublantes |
| Figure 5: | le plus gigantesque des spectacles |
| Figure 7: | l'arme la plus rapide |
| Figure 7: | les mains les plus meurtrières |
| Figure 10: | il "giallo" più sconvolgente |
| Figure 11: | il più bel romanzo |

adjectives in the positive degree are regularly used but are meant to convey a superlative idea:

- | | |
|------------|--|
| Figure 2: | une gigantesque lame de fond |
| Figure 2: | une aventure extraordinaire |
| Figure 2: | c'est fantastique |
| Figure 1: | d'une irrésistible drôlerie |
| Figure 10: | trionfale successo |

The teacher may wish to contribute to students' expansion of vocabulary by listing words related to film and film making. Words may be listed under given headings. For example:

Persons	Personnes	Personne
actor	un acteur	un attore actress	une actrice	una attrice

silent movie	le cinéma muet	il cinema muto
sound track	la bande sonore	la colonna sonora
editing	le montage	il montaggio

and the list could continue.³

The teacher may also wish to bring to students' attention some linguistic curiosities. For example,

- ciac or ciak (clapper board) is an onomatopeic word and gets its name from the sound itself.
- regista is a derivation of regia, a word coined by Bruno Migliorini in 1932 to replace the French régisseur.⁴
- giallo (literally, yellow) means detective or police (story) and by extension, mystery. The adjective received this meaning from the fact that Mondadori, a well-known Italian publisher, used yellow covers to mark books dealing with detective or police stories. Hence, un giallo Mondadori = a mystery novel published by Mondadori; un film giallo = un film poliziesco. The adjective also has a pejorative meaning associated with stampa (press). Stampa gialla means sensational journalism; scandal sheet.⁵
- film being a loan word is invariable in Italian; both singular and plural forms are the same; e.g., il film, i film.

At an introductory level, a drawing showing the interior of a movie theatre might be suitable to teach vocabulary (Figure 12). So, too, cartoons focussing on idioms or expressions which could be related to the film theme should be posted on the bulletin board on a spot already allotted to Rions ensemble/Ridiamo insieme (Figure 13).

And if thematic cartoons are not readily available, the teacher might consider anecdotes.

A crossword puzzle may be used to summarize vocabulary and to recall names of actors and actresses. If the ads were from movies produced in France or Québec, the student would become familiar with French and québécois actors and actresses. The definitions will also be a good test for students' reading comprehension. The answers are all to be found in the advertisements themselves. Finally, the completed crossword (Figure 14) will give the student a sense of achievement.

But the most fascinating exercise is the matching of French and English movie titles since exact translations are often impossible. The following might be a suitable exercise. Some answers are immediately evident, others require a bit of thought, while still others...

Colonne B

- a. À l'Est d'Eden
- b. L'Ange Bleu
- c. Qu'as-tu fait à la guerre, papa?
- d. Dernière mission à Nicosie
- e. La Bataille pour Anzio
- f. Les Hauts de Hurlevent
- g. Les Dents de la mer
- h. L'Homme de Rio
- i. De sang froid
- j. Rien n'est trop beau
- k. L'Homme au pistolet d'or
- l. Prise au piège
- m. Le Parrain
- n. Les Parachutistes arrivent
- o. Texas, nous voilà
- p. Quand les aigles attaquent
- q. L'Aventure du Poséidon
- r. De l'or pour les braves
- s. La Flèche et le flambeau
- t. Le Retour de la panthère rose
- u. Le Chant de Bernadette
- v. La Tour infernale
- w. Qu'est-il arrivé à tante Alice?
- x. 5.000 dollars mort ou vif
- y. Un Caïd
- z. Juliette des esprits

Réponses: 1. f; 2. p; 3. u; 4. o; 5. r; 6. w; 7. a; 8. x; 9. s; 10. y; 11. z; 12. b; 13. d; 14. c; 15. h; 16. j; 17. l; 18. e; 19. n; 20. m; 21. g; 22. q; 23. t; 24. v; 25. k; 26. i.

It is obvious that a literal translation is often impossible and that, to overcome this problem, the plot of the movie frequently plays a major rôle in determining the translation of the title. True Grit became Cento dollari per lo sceriffo in Italian since one hundred dollars was offered to Rooster Cogburn (played by John Wayne) by Mattie Ross (Kim Darby) to track down her father's killers. Pietro Germi's Signore e Signori (literally, Ladies and Gentlemen), a hilarious satire dealing with the Italians' sexual mores, became The Birds, the Bees and the Italians. Universal Films's Jaws became Les Dents de la mer (Figure 9). Both Jaws and Les Dents de la mer convey a similar idea, but the French is more colourful and the imagery is accentuated rather than lost in the translation. The English title, emphasized by a picture of a shark, jaws open wide, ready to tear and gnaw human beings, suggests a gory image. Les Dents de la mer, on the other hand, conjures up an image of vastness (la mer) ready to engulf. It's not as gory an image as Jaws but nevertheless a cruel and a frightful one. And the mono-syllabic words which make up the title give a chewing effect (/les/dents/de/la/mer/). The corresponding French word for a literal translation, mâchoire, would have been meaningless and quite ineffective as a movie title.

At an advanced level, students may be given a list of well-known movies with not-so-readily-translatable titles and then be asked to provide a suitable title based on the plot. The activity could yield some imaginative results.⁶

“Culture”

A comparison of the Entertainment section of Montréal's La Presse with Milan's Corriere della Sera or Il Giornale will show the type of information which is emphasized in the two “cultures.” We must keep in mind, however, that most French advertisements reproduced in this article are translations of English ads and hence what we are comparing are, in effect, not French but Canadian (or, North American) and Italian “cultures.” (Figures 15, 16, 17).

The following are some similarities and contrasts based on the advertisements themselves.

English (French) Advertisement

1. Name of theatre
2. Address
3. Telephone number (seven digits)
4. Hyphen to separate the seven digits (Figure 1) 388-5577
5. Times of performance given in regular time (Figure 4): 7h30; 5h15; 1h45. We assume these are afternoon and evening hours. But the twenty-four hour clock is used in the Horaires section (Figure 15)
6. Emphasis is on actors; directors are rarely mentioned except in Figure 1
7. Critical judgments often expressed
8. Type of audience allowed to see the film is clearly indicated: 14 ans (Figures 1, 2, 5, 7, 9), pour tous (Figures 3, 4, 6), 18 ans adultes (Figure 8)
9. Accents are often omitted

Italian Advertisement

1. Name of theatre
2. Address
3. Telephone number (six digits)
4. Period to separate the six digits (Figure 10) 780.390
5. Times of performance given in twenty-four hour clock (Figure 11): 14:15; 17; 19:45 22:30; both on the illustrated advertisements and in the listings of the Orari
6. Emphasis on actors and directors (Figure 11) with the latter often receiving greater or similar emphasis (Director Zurlini's name is in the same type as the actors' names)
7. Critical judgments often expressed
8. Type of audience allowed to see the film is clearly indicated: il film è per tutti (Figure 10)
9. Accents are never omitted

- from words, particularly when capitalized: DES DEMAIN (Figure 1), or no consistency is shown: À MINUIT, AU COURS DU RÉVEILLON... and LES HOMMES ... DECLARENT (Figure 2)
10. Often errors occur on the advertisement itself; e.g., brulent instead of brûlent (Figure 2)
10. Misprints or errors on the advertisement rarely occur

since such omission would indicate a different word; e.g., E' (an apostrophe is often used in Italian, instead of the acute or grave accent to indicate stress) must be accented; without the accent, it would be the conjunction and (Figure 10)

The listings, however, in the Italian (Figures 16, 17) provide greater insights. The Horaires of La Presse (Figure 15) list the name of the theatres (in alphabetical order), the title of the movies and the time of each viewing. The Italian, on the other hand, provides the following information (Figures 16, 17):

1. General divisions, types of film
 - a. Prime visioni: a list of films which are shown for the first time in that city;
 - b. ⁷ Cinema d'essai (sic) (Italians adopt a French term but do not use an accent!): "qui projette des films hors du réseau commercial (avant la distribution commerciale);⁷
 - c. Film d'arte e cultura: art and culture films
 - d. Cine e varietà: film and live entertainment
2. The various city districts where movies are shown; e.g., Zona Centro, Zona Vittoria-Monforte, Zona Romana, Zona Volta-Garibaldi, etc.
3. As in La Presse, names of theatres are arranged in alphabetical order.
4. Unlike La Presse, addresses of theatres are given.
5. As in La Presse, viewing times are expressed using the twenty-four hour system.
6. In addition, the Italian film announcement provides the reader with the following information:
 - a. Names of actors
 - b. Name of director
 - c. Price of admission ticket
 - d. Type of audience that can view it. V.M.14 = (ingresso) vietato ai minori di quattordici (anni); V.M.18 = (ingresso) vietato ai minori di diciotto (anni). Italian states admission in a negative way (admission forbidden to persons under fourteen years of age) unlike the French which implies that anyone who is fourteen or older may view the film.
7. The announcement tells the reader whether the film is in color (col.).
8. Type of film. The reader is told whether the film is a film di guerra, di avventure, di orrore, di spionaggio, di fantascienza. The film may also be a thriller, a suspense, a commedia, a commedia musicale, a commedia erotica, a commedia drammatica, a dramma, a fantasia. Not to mention that the film may also be musicale, poliziesco, drammatico, erotico, grottesco, western, comico, simbolico, satirico, giallo, lirico.

Courtesy Il Giornale

9. La Presse shows 21:35 as the time to see the last complete feature (unless it's a pornographic movie!). Both Corriere della Sera and Il Giornale show 22.30 as the time for the last complete show. Students may wonder why Italians can see the last complete feature so late. The teacher should remind them that in Italy dinner is generally served between 8:00 and 9:00 in the evening (and thus bring out another "cultural" characteristic!) The starting time of the last complete show allows Italians to eat leisurely before going to the movies.
10. Il Giornale (Figure 17) lists the films (see box) according to Critics', Public Opinion's and the Giornale's choice. It also provides both public and reviewer's opinion for each movie (both degree marks and asterisks follow each title, in bracket). Since in some cases, public opinion differs from the critics' choice, this discrepancy might very well be a point of departure for conversation and discussion in the classroom.

Since a great deal of emphasis is placed on the identity of the director, the teacher may ask the students to provide a short biographical note on various Italian directors.⁸ Two or more students might be encouraged to work together on finding information on one director and then be asked to give an oral presentation to the class. For example, Identifica brevemente uno dei registi seguenti. Parla della sua vita e dei suoi film, menziona attori e attrici che ha diretto e altre sue attività da te considerate importanti.

1. Vittorio De Sica
2. Federico Fellini
3. Luchino Visconti
4. Michelangelo Antonioni
5. Pier Paolo Pasolini
6. Pietro Germi
7. Elio Petri
8. Mario Bolognini
9. Alberto Lattuada
10. Dino Risi
11. Alessandro Blasetti
12. Mario Monicelli
13. Roberto Rossellini

Since films directed by the various directors will be mentioned in the oral presentations, it should not be too difficult a task for students to match either the titles of the film with the name of the director or the name of the leading actor or actress with the title of the film.⁹

Projects, Activities

There are a number of activities which can be created in order to promote discussion and conversation at different levels in the classroom.

1. Students may be asked to write a composition on "La violence dans les films contemporains." The content for this composition may come from movies students have seen or from readings they have done in French newspapers or magazines.

2. The same topic can be turned into a debate where two groups of students are asked to justify their opinions. Or, the format for this discussion might follow TV's Crossfire, Under Attack or The Great Debate.

3. Students may be asked to write a review of a movie recently seen.

4. A series of a "man-on-the-street" interviews about a given film may be carried out. This gives the student an opportunity to ask questions.

5. Situational dialogues of varied length might be created. For example, the teacher might consider the following:

Jacques et Marc décident d'aller au cinéma ce soir. Jacques regarde la section "cinéma-spectacles" de La Presse afin de choisir le film qu'ils vont voir.

MARC: Quel genre de film aimerais-tu voir?

JACQUES: _____

- MARC: Quelles sont les vedettes?
 JACQUES: _____
- MARC: À quelle heure est-ce que le film commence?
 JACQUES: _____
- MARC: À quel cinéma est-ce qu'on projette ce film?
 JACQUES: _____
- MARC: Comment allons-nous nous y rendre?
 JACQUES: _____

6. Students may be asked to make a poster illustrating a film based on a short story just read; e.g., "La Parure," etc.

7. Students might be asked to discuss a dramatized version of a short story and comment critically on various technical, acting and production aspects. Three well-known short stories, "Mlle Perle," and "La Peur" by Guy de Maupassant and "Les deux nègres" from Gabrielle Roy's Rue Deschambault are readily available from the Ontario Educational Communications Authority (OECA). Although the teacher would be faced with a different medium (TV instead of film), the activity could still be carried out.¹⁰

8. Students may also be involved in general discussions/conversations about movie-going, types of films they like/dislike, favourite actors/actresses, etc. In all cases, students should be encouraged to justify their choices or explain their reasons.

9. Students may be asked to summarize a plot of a movie they have just seen.

Conclusion

These are but a few ways to expand students' vocabulary, introduce them to "cultural" differences and involve them in language activities in the classroom. Any imaginative teacher can think of additional activities and present them in an interesting way in order to make language teaching and learning more fruitful and more enjoyable.
